PRESIDENT'S CORNER

Steve Bensing

Recently, something happened that I would like to share as an example of what it is like to sell some of your photography work. One of my favorite pieces, called Peterson's Pontiac, sold at Arlene's Pottery in Boulder Junction, Wisconsin. There is an interesting history behind it.

I took the photo about 12 years ago in the woods near Peterson Falls outside of Hurley, Wisconsin. I found some old cars there that had probably been abandoned for about 50 years (there is a 1963 license plate on this Pontiac). There were even cars with large trees growing through them. I took other photos that day, but this was the one I chose to print. I've visited that location in the years since, and the cars have been removed. The falls have been renamed Interstate Falls, due to being on the Montreal River, which forms the border between Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

There's more. I bought the frame, made from an old metal ceiling tile from a vendor at the Chesterton Art Fair a few years later. When I saw the frame, I knew it was perfect for this photo. Peterson's Pontiac has appeared in at least 4 other galleries. It has earned at least one award during this time, and almost sold before. I decided to take it to Arlene this spring. She loved it and put it on display in her shop. She also had another print of Peterson's Pontiac in a wood frame, which also sold!

It goes to show that art needs to be at the right place at the right time for the right buyer to make a connection. I have experienced this with other works of mine. It may just take some time. It pays not to give up!

At the Duneland Photography Club, we give opportunities for learning how to present and display your photography. We seek out venues for our members to exhibit. Earlier this year the club had a show at the Art Barn. Our members have also shown their work at many other places, including the county fairs. In the coming months, we have plans to exhibit at the Hoosier Highlander, the Art Blitz at the Art Barn, and the Chesterton Art Center. Our goal is to help our members succeed in presenting their photography skills to each other and the public.

FAMILY PICNIC 2023

The weather was great, and the enjoyment of the afternoon was even better. The turnout was fabulous for the annual Family Picnic. Congratulations to new members Des Kathyap and Max Dust for winning the cornhole competition and receiving official Duneland Photography Club t-shirts as prizes. Other t-shirt winners were Patrice Lawson (winner of the scavenger hunt who kindly gifted the t-shirt to Sheila Hathhorn Stephenson) and John Roquet who was off by one candy in the "guess the candy in the jar game."

Georganna Slosman Edmonds did a terrific job organizing the picnic. Thank you!

MEMBER ACCOLADES

Mark Zimmerman

Congratulations extended to Mark Zimmerman on his blue ribbon watercolor at the Porter County Fair.

Peggy Carter

Peggy Carter won a total of eight ribbons at the Porter County Fair. Congratulations, Peggy!

Carol Estes

How exciting! As part of the Lilian Fenig Inspired PAC Member Show, her "Plein Jane" won the Award of Excellence for the Fenig Inspired Work. And, her ICM canvas "Bayou Dream" sold to a new home. What a day! She missed the reception due to her trip to South Carolina.

CAMP FUNSET

“Summer camp at Sunset Hill Farm County Park features eight different weeks of themed experiences. Camp is for kids entering K-8 and runs Monday through Friday. Each week of camp includes STEM activities, archery, games, art activities, time with farm animals and community garden and nature activities.”

Members of the Duneland Photography Club have been volunteering to take photos of the many terrific events happening through the week.

Contact Steve Bensing if you'd like to volunteer.

CARTER'S CORNER

SHARON KERNER

Sharon met Indiana's First Lady, Janet Holcomb who wasn't able to be at the reception for the "Hoosier Women Artist 2023" at the State House on March 29th. She had chosen Sharon Kerner's Photo "Keeping Watch" and 2 other women's art pieces to hang in her personal office for one year. Sharon was very excited to meet with the Mrs. Holcomb at the Governor's Residence on June 27th.

DEB STIPP

Deb retired from Ivy Tech Community College - Lake County campus as of the end of July, after 27 years teaching psychology and chairing the department. Though she'll be teaching an occasional psych course, more of her time will be spent with her photography and art!

SUZAN PERRY

Suzan went to North Stonington, Connecticut for a July family reunion. They toured the ocean and saw seven lighthouses, visited Mystic Connecticut, saw a famous whaling ship, and enjoyed her first, ever hot lobster roll at Captain Scott's Lobster Dock.

STEVE BENSING

has been working for the past year and a half on the book Camp Jörn Stories: Memories, Traditions, Legends. He is the Editor-in-Chief of the book and leads a team of nine volunteers, including a graphic designer, a senior editor, four associate editors, the camp CEO, and the camp Operations Director. Steve serves as Camp Historian and worked with his team to collect stories and photos to tell the history and celebrate the 70th Anniversary of Camp Jörn this summer. He contributed much of the photography for the book, including this cover photo. It was sent to the printer in mid-July, so that the book would be delivered by August 18th for the Anniversary Celebration at Camp Jörn in Manitowish Waters, WI.
